The Teaching of Early Reading at St Joseph's

In St Joseph's we are determined that every child will become a fluent and confident reader regardless of their background, needs or abilities. We promote a love of reading throughout the school, with daily story-times, where children listen to a range of genres including stories, poems, rhymes and non-fiction, dedicated reading areas, a well-stocked and well-used library as well as class books which the children become very familiar with.

The teaching of early reading is prioritised at St Joseph's by using a systematic, synthetic phonics programme together with word recognition from the very start of YR. All teachers have received dedicated phonics training from an expert in the field and we have a 'phonics champion' in school to promote and support the teaching of phonics in school.

St Joseph's reading scheme comprises a combination of phonics-based, fully decodable books (Rising Stars) alongside a series of word recognition, or 'sight reading', books (ORT Biff, Chip & Kipper) which introduces high frequency words. The sequence of our reading scheme is based on a cumulative progression in phonics that closely matches our phonics programme. Supplementary books are available at each level for those children needing additional support. Employing both phonics and work recognition in the teaching of early reading provides children with different methods of accessing reading which enables them to succeed and progress quickly, building motivation and helping them to develop a love of reading.

At St Joseph's we teach a full systematic, synthetic phonics programme from the very start, whilst also teaching word recognition.

The top 300 high-frequency words make up 65% of all printed words. Almost half of these are not decodable using phonics. The result is that around a quarter of the words that children are asked to learn to read and spell cannot be done so phonetically. It is therefore vital to explicitly teach the common exception words.
